and sweet as a rose—the young woman who tones up her system with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a certain cure for all the ailments peculiar to the delicate organization of women. It is perfectly safe in any condition of the system and always reliable, regulating the delicate organs to prevent their work from being hampered. Women have pale, hollow cheeks, low spirits, when they are made miserable with disorders, derangements and weaknesses peculiar to their sex. Health is regained, after periods of dizziness, nervous prostration, pain and excitability, or other manifestations of derangement or displacement of the womanly organs, when the "Prescription" is used.

COUNTY LANDS.

Those who are interested in real estate in Virginia, or who are more broadly concerned in anything which tends to the development of the city and its surroundings, have heard no doubt with a great deal of interest of the proposed completion of the electric road from Alexandria to the end of the Aqueduct bridge. In connection with this bit of information it is also stated that it is contemplated to revive the road to Arlington, and that the Aqueduct bridge piers will be used for street railroad tracks.

If the plans are carried out and the expectations are realized, there will be established between the Virginia side of the Potomac and the Washington side a rapid and easy mode of communication. It will be the realization of efforts which have been made for a number of years past, and no doubt it will result in as much benefit as the projects and advocates of improved facilities of communication between Virginia and the District have always maintained would follow their adoption. Virginia, as indeed, all the territory contiguous to the city, will be benefited as the center of population expands.

There seems to be no reason why the overflow of population from this city should not find its way into Virginia as well as into Maryland. Already the suburbs of Washington extend for a long distance into Maryland, and also to some extent into Virginia. It is believed that the advantages of a home in Virginia, as well as of owning property there, will be more highly appreciated by the residents of this city when there are definite methods of communication which are rapid and at the same time inexpensive.

To those who are not familiar with the development of the city in recent years it might seem to be somewhat presumptuous to expect such an expansion of population as would require room for growth in the adjoining States, but, nevertheless, the population which belongs to Washington and is dependent upon this city has already spread itself out over a large area of both Virginia and Maryland, and it is very evident that this movement will continue in the future.—Wash. Star.

A GIRL'S ALPINE ADVENTURE.—The London Daily News publishes an account of an accident on the Alps to a young lady, Hulda von Steiger, 17 years old, who, because she had sprained her foot, insisted during an ascent of the Gaur in sliding in a sitting posture, down a deep snow field, instead of pursuing the rough descent over the rocks. Miss Hulda had scarcely started when she disappeared from the sight of her companions. After an hour's search her companions saw a hand sticking out of a snow-filled hole in the rocks. One of them, Mr. T., hurried down to Aldeboden to seek for help, while the other, a lady from north Germany, kept watch on the spot. There she passed the long hours of the rainy evening. Mr. T., at the village of Adelsboden, for a long time found a Dr. Dubois, of Bern. They started with some guides and an apparatus for lifting the unhappy girl out of the ravine. They reached the place after midnight, and it was with great difficulty that the ropes were fastened round the unconscious girl to lift her to the surface. She was seriously wounded on the head, but none of her limbs were broken. She lies in a quiet peasant's house, sometimes conscious, sometimes in delirium, and it is not certain whether her life can be saved.

INSOMNIA CURES.—"Out at the sanitarium they have a curious way of treating insomnia," said a business woman who has just returned from a fortnight of what she describes as the most perfect rest she has ever experienced, and which has restored her to energy and health. "they call it the 'wet-and-dry-stocking cure,' and it consists in drawing on one's feet just before going to bed a pair of stockings wrung out of ice-cold water. Over them are worn another pair of dry ones. The sensation at first is that of chilliness, but in a few minutes there is a most delicious feeling of warmth, and the blood seems to flow from the over-excited brain to the extremities. Some of the patients could go to sleep with the stockings on, but as they annoyed me, I was told to remove them as soon as I felt thoroughly warm, for then they had produced the desired effect. It is an old but a really efficient remedy for the cure of sleeplessness, and is perfectly harmless."—New York Recorder.
